

DID YOU KNOW?

"I will go on record, Tim, in saying [Barack Obama] has been the worst president this country has ever had." Tony Perkins, Family Research Council ¹

The Family Research Council and the American Family Association are represented in the leadership of the forces promoting this discriminatory Amendment. They are affiliated with national organizations recognized as hate groups by the Southern Poverty Law Center .

DID YOU KNOW?

Many of the legislators who are sponsoring this Amendment are the same Tea Party-backed, extremists who have campaigned against our voting rights, equal protection under the law, the Racial Justice Act, healthcare for all and jobs for African-Americans and the poor.

DID YOU KNOW?

This Discriminatory Amendment could:

- Take away domestic violence protections for all unmarried women in North Carolina. In Ohio, a similar amendment set domestic abusers free, putting their unmarried partners at risk.
- Strip legal recognition and protection from all unmarried couples.² It could leave such families with no basic healthcare and no hospital visitation rights.³
- Cause children of unmarried parents to lose their health and prescription drug coverage.⁴ It could be used to take a child away from a loving parent, threatening existing custody and visitation rights.⁵

The Case Against the Discriminatory Amendment

We hold it to be self-evident that all persons are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, the enjoyment of the fruits of their own labor, and the pursuit of happiness.

10 REASONS TO VOTE AGAINST DISCRIMINATION IN OUR CONSTITUTION

The Discriminatory Amendment has nothing to do with your personal opinion on same sex marriage. It has everything to do with whether you believe discrimination, division and hate should be codified in the fundamental legal document of North Carolina.

The real insult to the Civil Rights Movement is that the same regressive, ultra-conservative Tea Party type folks suing to overturn the 1965 Voting Rights Act, re-segregating and robbing our public schools of valuable resources, blocking workers' rights to organize, trying to force us all to get photo ID's to exercise our right to vote, which is nothing more than current day Jim Crow, cutting back on the time and opportunities to vote, and attempting to repeal the Racial Justice Act, now somehow think the sons and daughters of the Civil Rights Movement cannot see through their Trojan Horse trick.

It is especially concerning in a southern state for powers to set a precedent whereby a majority votes on the rights of a minority in an attempt to move toward a limited States Rights' agenda as a way of undermining the broad protections of our Constitution.

No matter our color. No matter our faith tradition. Those who stand for love and justice are not about to fall for their trick. No matter how you feel personally about same sex marriage, no one, especially those of us whose forebears were denied constitutional protections, should ever want to pass a constitutional amendment restricting rights of a minority. It sets a precedent for future discriminatory amendments that could impact the rights of even more minorities.

1. For 102 years the NAACP's mission has always been to "ensure the political, educational, social, and economic equality of rights of all persons." We have always opposed any custom, tradition, practice, law or constitutional amendment that denies any rights, privileges, or opportunities to any person which can legally be extended to others. We should never codify discrimination, division and hate into our Constitution. All people have a right to equal protection under the law.

2. Many civic and faith organizations have membership qualifications. But every person in North Carolina and the nation are protected by Constitutions that allow no racial, religious, or gender tests.

3. North Carolina should not reverse its proud history of expanding the rights of all persons in its constitutional amendments by now promoting an amendment that restricts the rights of some.

4. When the People of North Carolina are asked to put an amendment in our Constitution prohibiting some people from making a highly personal choice, it places a matter of conscience and personal belief in the hands of the Government, not our churches and other faith communities. We support the constitutional right of faith communities to determine whom they will and will not marry.

5. The NAACP does not take a position in support of or in opposition to same sex marriage. We recognize the issue of marriage rights for same-sex couples is a difficult and sensitive one. People of goodwill have heartfelt differences of opinion about it.

6. When most of us consider issues of marriage and family, we are guided by our religious and spiritual beliefs. The NAACP respects the diverse religious beliefs our churches regarding family life.

7. Same sex marriage is already illegal in NC.

8. Placing several sentences in our most important state document that deny rights to some persons, but which are extended to others, is dangerous and unnecessary, and will not resolve the disagreements.

9. The current legislative leadership proved earlier this year that they are not committed to obeying the Constitution as much as they are to pursuing their aggressive and regressive ideology when their budget was found to deny our poor and minority pre-schoolers their constitutional right to a sound, basic education.

10. The marriage we should be concerned about is the marriage of corporate money and politics. Ultra-conservative corporations have tied the knot with an ugly set of anti-public policies that undermine public education, voter protection, workers rights, protection from payday lenders, health care reform and other programs established for the public good.

Legislators and all North Carolinians should focus on providing sound basic education for every child; equal access to good health care; living wages; workers rights; recovery from natural disasters; and protections for maximum voter turnout.
